

ENGLISH FOR MEDICAL ACADEMIC PURPOSES

SPECIALIST ONLINE ENGLISH COURSE

2ND
EDITION

- Specially written for medical universities and teaching organisations
- Essential online materials for teachers and students
- Fresh, updateable, customisable content, written by experts

For medical students, writing articles, giving presentations, listening to lectures and reading research papers in English is increasingly important in the globalised world of healthcare.

SLC's online English for Medical Academic Purposes course gives students and professionals the language skills they need to work effectively with English language materials at a high level.

This course can be used in the classroom or as guided self-study. It is an excellent resource for both Medical English teachers and their students.

"This course was really useful for me, as I got a lot of new knowledge, which will help me to communicate with my colleagues and prepare scientific works."

Inga Kolesnikova, medical student

English is the lingua franca of international medicine and pharmacy. The vast majority of research is published in English. Most conferences are given in English.

Having a strong understanding of medical academic English, enables today's students to

- ✓ keep up with the latest research
- ✓ attend and speak at conferences
- ✓ write articles and reports in English
- ✓ study and practice overseas
- ✓ participate in international projects
- ✓ network effectively in a global healthcare environment

What does the course include?

On this course, learners

- develop the skills and strategies they need to listen effectively to academic talks, give presentations or read academic texts
- learn the key features of academic writing, so they are able to write abstracts, articles and research papers clearly and effectively
- expand their academic vocabulary
- deepen their knowledge of grammar and structure
- improve their study skills so they develop as independent learners and researchers

Why online?

- Accessible wherever a teacher or learner has an internet connection
- Updateable content, so it is never out of date
- Engaging and motivating multi-media content, in line with how current students want to learn
- Trackable, so you can easily see who has done what, and what their scores were
- Customisable, so universities can add their own content and their own branding
